

REAL ESTATE DIGITAL CONTENT PRODUCER

The Buffalo News is hiring a part-time reporter to cover the region's residential real estate market for BuffaloNews.com and other digital products.

This will be a fast-paced job scouring public records and real estate listings for newsworthy gems – whether it's the most expensive residential sale of the week or the house on the market with noteworthy features. The ideal candidate should write quickly, concisely and accurately, love searching public records and real estate listings and have an eye on what's new and interesting. This position will work closely with reporters who cover real estate and development and will be involved in brainstorming new ways to present information online.

Reporting experience can include student journalism and internships. Hours are flexible. Send a resume, cover letter and clips to recruiter@buffnews.com